Penicuik, Midlothian

Carlops, Scottish Borders

Audience: built environment professionals who interact with Scotland's Conservation Areas. Non members welcome.

IHBC's CPD training days in 2018 aims to reflect upon 50 years since the first Conservation Areas were designated in Scotland. The first, Carlops and Skirling in Peeblesshire, appeared in the Edinburgh Gazette on 19 April 1968 followed by a part of Carlops then in Midlothian. And we look forward to the latest linkage of Conservation to Regeneration through a CARS in Penicuik, hoped soon to begin by Midlothian Council. Book this with Scotland@ihbc.org.uk

This will be followed by an Ayrshire day on 11 May, looking at conservation area management in Ayr and Maybole. We will assess the impact of the recent THI, and look at strategic ways forward in both towns. We propose to complete the series covering East, West and North East later in the year with a day looking at Conservation Areas in Aberdeen.
