

IHBC PROFESSIONALS

The Institute of Historic Building Conservation (IHBC) is the key professional body for built and historic environment conservation specialists. The IHBC represents, regulates and supports professionals contributing to the conservation of valued buildings and places.

Why conserve places?

Our historic places range from buildings and urban spaces to landscapes and interiors. They bring huge and sustainable economic, environmental, social, educational and cultural benefits to everyone, but special skills are needed to protect these resources. To secure their future for all generations the IHBC supports the skills needed for the care, conservation, understanding and full enjoyment of our historic places by promoting professional policies, investment and standards in conservation.

What does the IHBC do?

The IHBC encourages its members to develop their specialist skills in conservation. Joining the IHBC will help you recognise and expand your skills and understanding.

The IHBC:

- provides advice to members, stakeholders and government
- promotes standards and skills in historic environment & building conservation and heritage regeneration
- encourages the special care of the historic environment as a sustainable and unique resource that benefits everyone
- supports professional recognition of all the skills needed to secure sustainable conservation

If you work in conservation join the IHBC.
