

Tell us what you think

The Defra agencies are made up of the Environment Agency, Forestry Commission and Natural England. Together we want to provide a positive and efficient planning service to developers and planners with clear advice and examples of good practice which protect and enhance the environment.

We are proposing new updated and joint advice for developers and planners and would value your feedback

Would you welcome joint development advice from the Defra agencies ?

Yes / ~~No~~

Would you find good practice case studies useful?

Yes / ~~No~~

Proposed themes for the new integrated advice to include:

- Green infrastructure:
 - sustainable design and construction
 - habitat provision and access to nature
 - access, recreation, movement and leisure
 - adapting to climate change
- flood risk management
- ecosystem services
- place-making
- woodlands and forests

Water resources management, land contamination, pollution prevention, waste management and forestry.

Are there any other subjects that should be included in the advice ?

We think that (whilst not directly covered by the advice) the possible impingements of the advice on other environmental matters (e.g. heritage) should be covered where appropriate and where known of foreseeable issues arise.

Would you like to be signposted to more detailed information on each subject ? Yes / ~~No~~

Are you aware of the Environment Agency 'guide for developers' ?

Yes / ~~No~~

If yes, how would you rate it ? (reasons why)

- Excellent
- Good
- OK
- Poor

Are you aware of Natural England's 'Green Infrastructure' guidance or the 'Green Infrastructure by design' guidance?

Yes (please tick relevant guidance) / No

If yes, how would you rate it ? (reasons why)
